A MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR AND THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Reflecting on the last year, our minds easily go to the many, many ways we have been individually and collectively impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. We each can account for that impact, on a very personal level and on a broader community, sector and societal level. The story that is always running on repeat for all of us here at CLYS, is the impact(s) on the people we support, their families and our staff team. The definition of resilience is the ability to recover or bounce back when encountering a challenge or crisis, having a reservoir of strength in the face of stress and hardship and adapting in the face of adversity. We have seen resilience defined by the people we support, their families and our staff team. From the beginning of the pandemic to present, they have faced each day, each emergency order, each wave and each season, with grace and fortitude. They have responded by wearing PPE, following all of the health and safety measures, staying under lockdown since March 2020 with more limiting restrictions than the broader community, pulling up their sleeves for vaccines, doing surveillance testing, staying the course and doing their part to get us through each wave. In the face of their own personal and individual situations, they have adapted; they have participated in the bigger picture of moving our community and our province through this pandemic. They are each extraordinary.

Like many organizations, CLYS, through our best collective efforts, worked hard to keep each other and ourselves healthy and safe. We experienced a few outbreaks over the last year. However, we feel very fortunate to have minimized the potential health impact on people we support and our staff teams. We have learned a great deal about infection prevention and control measures and are thankful for the expert knowledge and support from our partners at York Region Public Health, Markham Stouffville Hospital and Mackenzie Health Hospital. The COVID-19 pandemic highlighted the importance of connection. There are so many things we have missed in our daily lives; the list is long and personal to each of us.

Our unexpected and unimagined time in lockdown and stay at home orders have given us all time to consider, examine and evaluate what is important. I think it is a safe assumption to make that we have all missed connection to our family, friends and social roles.

In addition to the resilience of people supported and our staff teams that we have witnessed through the challenges of the pandemic, we have also experienced the opportunity that comes with adversity. This opportunity was for us to re-imagine connection, to be creative and innovative to find new ways to be together while staying apart. Phone calls, FaceTime, and Zoom became our conduit to finding a way; window and driveway visits allowed for the feeling of closeness while distancing. We used online platforms to provide program supports and while missing the in-person contact, we reached many people and families, creating new connections through chat times and online forums. As we look to the future and what will continue to serve individuals and families well, we are confident that some of these new avenues to connect will remain. Watching the daily news feeds over the last year has also taught us about how our community has reimagined connection and has shown its resiliency. We have experienced this firsthand: individuals, networks and companies have reached out to provide grocery shopping for our supported group living homes, donations of PPE and special items for families and people we support who live independently, holiday baskets, weekly hot meals; the list is extensive as people stepped forward and leaned in to help make life easier. To do this during non-covid times is helpful, appreciated and always welcomed; to do so during a pandemic is extraordinary. We are thankful. We are also thankful to the leaders in our Developmental Services sector, from Central Region and provincially; they stepped forward, leaned in to take charge, took lead in creating new resources for all of us, advocated strongly and inserted our sector into the regional and provincial planning tables. Their efforts brought attention to the effect of the pandemic on people who have intellectual disabilities, families and our staff teams. Thank you. We are in this together and together, we are better. As we look to the future, we want to continue to bring attention to our physical and emotional health. It has always been important to take care of all aspects of our health; however, the health impact of the last year has highlighted the importance of self-care and care for each other. FINDING JOY DURING A PANDEMIC

STRATEGIC PILLARS

Strategically Thinking

Since March 2020, our attention has been firmly planted in an operational focus on the health, well-being and safety of the people we support, their families, our staff team, our broader community, each other and ourselves. We never imagined that wave one would turn into wave two and then wave three; it has been a “full time, everybody on board” effort. As such, we delayed our plans to refresh our CLYS 2018-2020 Strategic Plan. Having a current strategic plan provides direction on being a relevant and responsive organization. As we transition out of stay at home orders and lockdown, we will re-energize our focus on our future strategic directions. As this unfolds, we will keep everyone informed of next steps. FEATURE STORIES: WORKING AND LIVING THROUGH THE PANDEMIC

I love working at Markham Stouffville Hospital as a concierge. I greet patients and escort them to their appointments. I worked through the initial pandemic lock down period over a year ago and I am still working hard at my job. There have been many changes and new protocols in place since the pandemic started. The startup of the screening process for all people entering the hospital required a series of questions then issuing the mandatory mask given by the screeners and sanitizing their hands. I found that many patients found this screening process hard and they often became impatient and upset. I did not personally find my job stressful but I felt bad for the patients who seemed very uncomfortable. As a concierge I need to put on a brave face, smile and be calm and comforting especially when dealing with patients. I really appreciated working through the pandemic because I was out of my home daily and being the very social person that I am I love the face to face interaction with patient's, staff and volunteers. I am very proud that people say I do a great job and I train new concierge staff and volunteers. I have been supported by Community Living Staff on my job location for six years and love every minute of it. - Jessica Jeffery R, works at Loblaw (Bayview and hi-tech location). He continued to work throughout the pandemic. He said he felt he had the support of CLYS staff, 100% and we provided him with PPE and hand sanitizer.

His staff visited him at work to ensure he felt safe. He adapted to the changes and challenges. He was asked by the manager several times to make changes to his schedule (due to coworkers not being able to work) Jeffery said he needed to be a team player, and help out when he can.

He feels that the managers and co-workers at Loblaw is very supportive of him. He hopes things will get back to normal soon. For now, he continues to work 4-5 days a week.

Justin G, works at Fresco. He said at first he was concerned that he will get COVID-19. The manager talked with him about work and the safety precautions that is being taken to ensure safety at the workplace.

He discussed working with his CLYS staff and he said he would like to continue working. He received some PPE from CLYS, and ongoing from the store manager. He feels everyone is very supportive of him.

Justin said he is very proud that he continued to work through the pandemic. He feels that he is being supported 100% by CLYS staff. He is looking forward to things getting better.

I have been taking painting lessons taught by a family member. I also draw and have learned how to do crochet via YouTube. I receive the e-connector that my staff sends weekly via email that has interesting Zoom sessions along with taking Marketplace Zoom courses. I sometimes go on my treadmill as well as nature walks with my mom to Rouge National Parks and 'Too Good Pond'. I have been cooking with my brother as well as learning to do household chores. I really enjoy a weekly get together with my friend Jessica. Community Living has been staying in touch with me via phone and sending me links for registering for COVID vaccines, resources, Zoom courses etc. With Passport funding (staff assisting with temporary funding), I purchased numerous books, art supplies, a Switch, Disney Plus channel and a keyboard. - Samantha

SHINING LIVES ... A TRIBUTE

Trevor Douglas Reid July 29, 1947 - January 3, 2021

Trevor Douglas Reid was born on July 29, 1947 and passed away the morning of Sunday, January 3, 2021 at his home on Wethersfield Court. In the words of Trevor's dear sister Judy, "He has gone on to Graceland to finally sing his duet with Elvis".

Trev was a devout Elvis fan and a fantastic dancer, stealing the hearts of many with his sensational skills. He embraced all things Christmas and anything chocolate. He loved a cold Coors light and a good wrestling match.

Trev had a mischievous smile and a twinkle in his eye that would light up a room. He had a rich life, filled with family, friends, travel and adventure.

Trev brought light, love and boundless joy to the lives of each person whose path he crossed along his way. Knowing Trev was a privilege and brought with it lessons in kindness, acceptance and unconditional love.

His lease on life was an inspiration to those around him. Trev lived each day as though it was his last and danced his heart out as if no one was watching.

Monica Lisa Duke

August 21, 1966 - April 22, 2021

Monica was a very happy and loveable friend who always enjoyed a good beer, a good clap and being surrounded by her favourite people.

She came to reside in the Thicketwood home with Community Living York South in 1995. She was very much loved by her parents, Nora and Allan, until their passing in 2001 and 2010.

Monica brought love, light and laughter to all who knew her. Through her courageous battle with cancer, she never lost her strength to keep going, her happy grins and wiggles and resiliency to changes as they came.

She is greatly missed by her staff team and housemates.

"As special needs parents we are challenged constantly with various issues and demands that are hard to comprehend. Without any support and guidance we would be lost in the system and our dependants would be disconnected from society. Thanks to Community Living York South who through their programs and various resources have walked this journey with us and extended helping hands to us throughout the years. Heartfelt appreciation from our family." - Cheng Family
